NEW REVISION OF THE SCRIPTURES.

other Translation-Its Features.

ether Translation—Its Features.

While in New Jersey I had a peep into a most interesting sanctum I saw the Woman's Bible committee at work. In a richly furnished drawing-room, about a broad table, a half dozen women with intelligent faces and busy pens. Each one had a cheap bible, which was being read with care, and ever and anon a verse would be cut out bodly by a pair of scissors and pasted at the top of a long sheet of white paper. Then the other ladies would cut from their bible the selfsame words, and when all had their text before them they would begin to discuss it in turn. One of these commentators is an excellent Greek and Hebrew scholar, another is deeply versed in current Biblical criticism, while still another has gone through with care all the big tomes of the great commentaries like those of Henry, Scott, and Dr. Adam Clarke. After the verse in question has been fully discussed, each lady writes under it what she has to say about it and then all the sheets are passed on to a secretary. This secretary, a recent Vassar graduate, cuts out the verse from another graduate, cuts out the verse from another tary. This secretary, a recent Vassar graduate, cuts out the verse from another what she has to say about it and then all the sheets are passed on to a secretary. This secretary, a recent Vassar graduate, cuts out the verse from another Bible, pastes it on a sheet much longer than those that have been just handed to her, and then carefully copies under it all the notes made by the learned ladies sitting about the board.

Some of your readers will begin to ask, "But what does all this mean?" This was exactly the question that I put to the eldest lady of the group, who seemed to be the presiding genius of the couclave, after I had puzzlingly witnessed what I have just recounted in the foregoing paragraph. "Well," began my friend, with a merry twinkle in the eye, "we women mean to do what you men have been doing for centuries; you have revised the scriptures after your fashion, and now we intend to do the same thing after our fashion. We have gone over the Old and New Testaments ... ith great care, and we find that about one-tenth of the Bible touches, in one way or another, on us women. Now we want to know whether male translations, interpretations, and commentaries have been made in a spirit friendly to ohr sex. We and a great many other women have our doubts on this point. In a word, we propose issuing what may be called "The Woman's Bible." On our revising committee sit able women from England and America. We have a well-known publisher who atsands ready to take our manuscript, and before this time next summer we hope to give to the world the Bible as revised by women."

This very bold speech was delivered in a very gentle manner, and the lady then fell to work again, one on the "board" having discovered another passage that was to be dealt with in the way already described. I returned to New York, pondering over this strange scene and this conversation, and I became convinced that when this new book appears it will create a breeze in church and state.—Theodore Stanton in Inter Ocean.

The Jamales negro acting on his

The Jamaios negro, acting on his ewn volation, will not work at all. With the proportionate disbursement for supervision required by intelligent white labor, he will go through the form of working. To get even spasamodic work—real work out of him, requires a grossly dispropositionate outlay in foremen's wages. He has no labor-morality. Directing his labor is like driving a horse who stands still as he fails to hear his master's exhertations. The foreman of a gang of these negroes cannot leave one of them with an hours work laid out for nim, and return at the end of an hour to find the work done.

It is literally the fact that the average canal laborer will not work for more than ten minutes consecutively as the result of one initial impulse. At the end of that time he must receive a new impetus, and this new impetus must be of a tangible Panama Canal Labor time its must receive a new impetus, and this new impetus must be of a tangible nature. It is not sufficient for him to know that the foreman is in his immediate vicinity. He must meet the foreman's eye or hear the foreman's veice when he stops at the end of those teaminutes. He is the worst laborer in the world. The negro, as seen from the cotton plantations of Mississippi, according to an Angio-Saron marvalously stephic and lasy. The Jamasha negro is most than that. He is whosly devoid of any mass of the right-ament of hard work. Fanance Cor. New York Tribune.
